Construction Committee Reports Recommendations as Basis of Study by Delegates from Union High District

The question of establishing Junior High schools was put up to the boards of elementary schools of the Union High school district last night. Representatives of the various elementary school districts included in the Glendale High school district had a highly satisfactory conference with High school trustees Tuesday evening as their dinner guests, the conference following the dinner.

The report was as follows: Glendale, Cal., December 5, 1922. To the General Committee on Formation of a Junior High School System in the Glendale Union High School District.

The special committee, composof the undersigned, appointed at the meeting of the general committee held Tuesday evening, November 28, held a conference with Jerry Powell of the county counsel's office, and Mark Keppel, sel's office, and schools. mittee held Tuesday evening, Noon Friday, December 1, on the subject of establishing a junior high school in this union high school district. It was learned from these

(1) That the high school board could establish a junior high school upon receipt of a statement of proof showing the consent of a majority of the trustees of the elementary school systems within the union district, and a majority of the districts; for example, this union district contains the following elementary districts: Glendale with a board of five; Eagle Rock with a board of three; La Crescenta with a board of three: Tujunga with a board of three; Monte Vista with a board of three. If the Glendale school board and two of the other boards should vote in favor of the establishment of a junior high school in the district, the high school board would have the right and power to establish such school.

(2) That it is practically impossible to bring all the districts under the governing board and retain the separate districts as entities, unless the elementary scho districts outside of Glendale would be willing to annex to Glendale for school purposes. That the union district could be disorganized with the consent of the outside districts to withdraw from the union district. Later on these districts as entities could be annexed to the Glendale a union junior high school system, as outlined in subdivision one City School district for high school of this report or in accordance with the proposed new law if it shall be exacted. That the school districts outside of Glendale could withdraw from the union district by filing with the county superintend trustees, and E. E. Harwood, superschools (a) petitions signed by a majority of the heads of families or a majority of the electors residing in the union high school district, and two-thirds of the heads of families or of the electors re siding in any school district which is a part thereof, as shown by the affidavit of one or more of the petitioners; and (b) an agreement signed by a majority of the high school board of such high school district, and a majority of the trustees of such district, consenting to such exclusion and setting forth the terms thereof. On receipt of the petitions and agreement the county superintendent of scoools after verifying the signatures and finding them sufficient, must transmit the petitions and agreement to the board of supervisors with his recommendations; and said board may in their discretion make an order excluding such school district, or districts, from the high school district upon the terms agreed upon; providing. however, that no school district however, that no school district shall be excluded from the high school district having an outstand-ing bonded indebtedness, where such exclusion would so reduce the amount of taxable property in such high school district that said out-standing bonded indebtedness

Compositions to Be Written by Pupils of Glendale Schools

December 3-9 has been set apart as American Education Week by the American Legion the Bureau of Education, and the National Education association for the purpose of bring-ing more emphatically before the American people the problems of education. In order that the people of Glendale might know what their local schools are doing, the Glendale Daily Press has generously given over a page of its paper each day to be written and edited entirely by the students of the Glendale high and grammar schools. The committees for the week's publicity decided that the schools could most effectively show how they are training their students for good citizenship by letting the stu-dents speak for themselves. The grammar schools will be represented by compositions from the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, to be published respectively on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The high school has contributed themes on the subjects being emphasized on the various days of the week. The proofreading, makeup and editing of the page has been in charge of the journal-ism class of the high school. PUBLICITY COMMITTEE.

OF C. DIRECTORS C. DISCUSS BUDGET FOR YEAR

Members of the Chamber of Commerce directorate met Tuesday evening to organize its work for the coming year. Most of the evening was given to a discussion of the budget based on the expenditures of the past year. It was agreed Glendale demands an efficient chamber but at the same time directors expressed a desire to keep the budget down to a point which would leave some money available for unexpected emergencies, at the same time taking care of the necessary activities and obligations including the advertising of Glendale.

WORLD'S GREATEST ASSET IS THE RISING GENERATION

By JOHN H. GERRIE Civic Development Expert

This week is fraught with wonderful potentialities. If it be observed in the manner it deserves its beneficent effect may reach farther than anyone now can foresee. It is National Education Week.

It is important to every man, woman and child in the Glendale district. It is important to every man, woman and child everywhere. For it is centered upon the most tremendous asset in all this

THE RISING GENERATION! The world is just becoming conscious of this greatest of all assets-

the CHILD. The future of all humanity rests with the children of today. Whether civilization advance or decline, whether democracy endure or perish, depends, not upon the actions of adults, but upon the inclination of children. "As the twig is bent so the tree is inclined." If the children of today be trained to make this world a better place in which to live, the children of tomorrow will grow up in a better world. The most important thing in the world at this moment is the EDUCATION OF THE CHILDREN. Of vastly more importance than armies and navies, conservation of resources or accumulation of wealth is CONSERVATION OF YOUTH. And the only way this conservation may be accomplished is through public education. There is no other way.

Every day brings fresh evidence that the adult world steadily is groping for the truth and floundering in the right direction. In its efforts to give expression to the readjustment of the affairs of life the adult world begins to see the potentialities of the child world, as through a crystal globe.

Since the Great War more organizations have been perfected in the interests of youth and more campaigns have been instituted for the instruction of boys and girls than in all the years that have gone before. Everywhere there seems to be a growing dsire to spread knowledge among the young people of the land. Public interest in education is doing something that education itself heretofore has been unable to do. It is causing thought in terms of the future and training young minds to that inclination.

The world is calling upon education to state its fundamental objective. What is education? Is it proceeding along reasonable and intelligent lines? Does it fit the individual for his rightful sphere in life?

the individual: 1-Physically fit. 2-Economically efficient. 3—Socially happy.

Society never had to shoulder responsibility for the individual who embraces these qualities within himself. Every crime for which men and women go to jail has its source in lack of one or other of these, chiefly the second and third. Those physically unfit are sent to an asylum and the lawyer sets up a plea of insanity.

If crime and insanity be lessened, perhaps eventually eliminated, by education, how essential that all the young of the world be started upon the road to learning at once. A nation without illiterates will be a nation of happiness. The only way to eliminate the illiterate is to educate all the youth.

Enough high spots surely have been hit upon here to show the urgent need of turning the thoughts of city, state and nation, for at least one week, to the most important subject of education. If the people of this happy and prosperous community would make up their minds that all the boys and girls hereabouts must have the very best all-round education it is possible to attain they will have started a ball rolling that will accumulate size in the manner of a snow sphere on a steep down grade. This city may take a leading part in the emancipation of the world by preaching the gospel of the CONSERVATION OF YOUTH not only during this week but during all weeks.

Make every week a National Education Week.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

I'M A KNOCKER

Editor Press: I am practically a new citizen of Glendale, having recently finished and settled in a home here. I have read the Press on the annexation question with strong approval and wish to be recorded as a sure knocker against being annexed to Los Angeles. My objection to annexation is founded on actual experience at a place where I formerly lived. The district annexed was promised all city conveniences. It was six years ago, since which the said district annexed has had only triple property tax and double domestic water tax. As I have adopted Glendale for a permanent home I am wishing it to stay Glendale and knocking annexation to to the district convention. After the initiation, election of officers and regular order of business, a banquet was served by Emil Rehberg, at which Attorney G. H. King was toastmaster.

Many speeches were made at the banquet table touching upon Pythiasism. Christmas cheer and gen eral community civic affairs. Glendale has many Knights Pythias who are daily becoming afiliated with the local lodge and the members from other states who are visiting the local lodge and becoming affiliated are happily surprised to find such a body of en thusiastic members as the lodge numbers.

Chancellor Commander C. A Nicholson has had a very successful year in the lodge work and the members on this occasion extended him their heartfelt appreciation.

GOOD MANNERS

By LOREN SCOVILLE, '24 It is very important for us to have good manners. Our manners reveal our charcters and determ ne, to a large extent, our social prestige. People do not like to be aroung or to associate with persons who are not careful about their etiquette and social usage. One way of showing our good manners s by speaking correctly. The poor use of English in speaking and writing shows a poor education and reflects upon us. The excessive use of slang is one way in which we may show a lack of manners. I only shows poor manners if used in society, but it also shows a lack of education. Slang is becoming more and more prominent in the language spoker by the American people. It is in-stilled into the child's mind, and he uses it from the time he begins to speak. Today there are very few, and, in fact, almost no per sons, who do not use some slan at times when they are excited, or do not think carefully. Now, is it a good thing for the American people to use slang! Shall we incorporate it in our dic tionaries, and consider it permissible in our discourse? The majority of the authorities say that we as standard for us to follow. so, when we say that correct Eng lish shows, good manners, we should be very careful not to use slang.

Mr. Herbert Hoover: "No one can deny that the physical development of child life is of equal importance with education. We, everyone of us, pay the price in our jails, in our poorhouses, in our hospitals, in the loss of our economic efficiency, the fertile ground that we furnish for all the social patent medicines, for our failure to have grasped the entire problem of child development not only intellectual but physi-

ILLITERATE AMERICA

By EVELYN CURREN, '24

By careful examination of over a million and a half oldiers, it was found that 25 per cent of them were illiterate. People unable to read and write were found among all classes, not only in the southern states among the negroes, and in the coast cities, but also in states such as New York, which has more illiterates than any other state in the Union. In the slums of large cities, where people are struggling to live, children must work as soon as they are able to help support the family.

Illiteracy can be' defined in two ways. When the United States census was taken in 1910, people were not classed as illiterate unless they confessed that they were unable to read or write any language, and had no schooling whatever. But this is not a satisfactory definition for people living in a democracy where all citizens may vote. By the census of 1910 five million confessed illiteracy.

Can this number possibly represent a menace to our democratic institutions? The meaning of illiteracy, according to the army draft, was the lack of ability to read and understand newspapers and to write letters using the English language. Can we afford to have one-fourth of our young men unable to understand their own language?

A nation's prosperity is not substantial when any class is discontented, but why should people love America when they cannot enjoy its full extent of benefits for lack of education? If they are given a fair opportunity to learn, they are indebted to the citizens who have faithfully kept education as their highest stand-This can be done by seeing that the best of teachers are secured for rural as well as city schools, by voting school bonds to keep all children in the schools and by encouraging all to attend by providing attrac-

THE MERCHANT MARINE

By examining the tongue of Sir George M. Booth, director of the Bank of England, lately gave an interview to a Pasadena reporter. The impression one receives through reading the interview, is that the gentleman is sincere when he says that Americans are jolly good fellows. There is an instant impulse to respond, "you're another." With this, the unity of opinion begins to be less marked.

Sir George asked the reporter, as representing the citizenry generally "Why should your nation need a large merchant marine?"

Doubtless from the British point of view, the query was wholly proper. It might have been put in another form that would have made its precise meaning clear. For instance, had Sir George said, "Don't you think it presumptuous for the United States to attempt to compete with England for the trade of the world?" the thought prompting him would have stood forth quite without disguise.

The gentlemen affected to believe that the desire for an American merchant marine was based wholly on military grounds. As a matter of fact, such consideration hardly enters into the matter at all. Neither ing slaves to duplicate the work done by Americans. is General Pershing fairly to be called a "militarist" in The use of power and machinery gives to every man is General Pershing fairly to be called a "militarist" in the sense in which the visitor employed the characterization. Maritime vessels would be useful adjuncts to the navy in time of war; but war is not expected. Just before the United States plunged into war a few years ago, it had not been expected, either. No American desires his country stripped of means of defense, and yet the American who advocates a merchant marine is thinking in terms of commerce and is destricted as a pack-large of dates from Syria, a bag of nuts from Brange of dates from Syria and Brange of dates from Sy

The women on the jury wanted to convict her of murder in the first degree, It was owing alone to the male members that a compromise had to be arranged in order to avoid disagreement. But had the defendant been a man, there are a number of precedents for believing that the salvation of his neck would have been due to women, and that the masculine element of the jury would have been ready to send him to the gallows.

The other day a man charged with some minor offense appeared before the committing judge not only with a demand for a jury trial, but that the jury be composed of women. There are certain duties incumbent upon any prosperous people. One is the obligation to be charitable. In this respect there has been no failure. He had youth and inexperience, but time would remedy both of those weaknesses. And he set forth with a pretty good opinion of himself and a lot of confidence. For youth and health and strength usually make for fairly high self-esteem.

He got off with a great flurry and flutter and sputter and sped off down the road in a cloud of smoke and dust.

And those he left behind waved him goodbye and sent their good wishes after him. And the journey was begun.

Before he had gone far a traveler hailed him from the highway.

And the youth took him in. And the traveler talked with him. Gave him a lot of good advice.

screen stars. He does this by denying that they have the gift of comeliness. Taking them one by one, he throws a nose into the discard, condemns a chin, decries the eyes. He says that heads are too big, the legs too short, the hips too wide, and the whole form musclebound.

Before considering the colossal nerve of the artist, it is fair to remark that the stars thus affronted are far above the average in good looks. Indeed, in the case of many of them, pulchritude is the one quality that has won them standing in the profession. Take a pretty girl, with a shrewd director, and the brains of the latter often do supply the intelligence of the pair. This does not afford the artist any proper occasion for a kick.

There is no such thing as a standard of beauty universally acceptable. An artist conceives a type that he believes should be the standard, and so adopts it. If he is making a picture, the type always appears. In time he gets so that he is unable Therefore he puts his ideal face on every feminine creation, be she queen or scrub woman, doing this for the simple reason that he is unable to make any other kind. When a screen star fails to conform to his arbitrary rules, it is not a sign of defect in her visible aspect. On the contrary the condemnation by the artist may as readily be construed into a compliment, as received

There must be that quality known as "class" to Policeman Mc-Allister of Los Angeles. Recently he caught three armed robbers in a tolen automobile, and took the lot to jail. That required courage. Moreover, a policeman who gets a chance to shoot a robber and checks the impulse of his trigger finger has admirable self control.

For the first time in naval history a seaplane has been launched by catapult from the deck of a battleship. The event took place in the harbor at San Pedro. It was completely successful.

Occasionally the statement is made that the army and navy both are neglecting aviation. It is only partly true. All the neglect that may be charged has been due to the stinginess of congress.

Complaints in relation to conditions at the county jail have been many. The institution is shamefully overcrowded. It would be impossible to give proper care to the number now detained there. The sheriff is making an effort to accomplish the impossible, but with indifferent success, as he is handicapped by not being a miracle

To make matters worse, if possible, the discovery is announced that many of the prisoners have been held without trial for long periods. Against some of these there is said to be lack of evidence sufficient to hold them at all. This ignores the rights of individuals, but it also gives a lamentable rap to the integrity of the institution, a document that confers the privilege of speedy trial

Dr. Briegleb preached Sunday on the text "When Should a Preacher Resign His Church?" His elucidation of the theme is not at hand. Perhaps to answer, "when he is offered a better one" would not be wholly amiss.

The automobile races at Los Angeles were highly successful, productive of a record, and marked by thrills without fatalities. It is natural to assume upon attending a contest of this magnitude, that somebody will be killed. No spectator really desires to witness such a tragedy, but to observe a narrow escape or two probably is agreeable response to every requirement.

The investment by Mrs. Leeds in Grecian royalty seems to have turned out poorly. It is easy enough for a rich woman to buy a prince, but to get one in whose title the purple is warranted fast, is a difficult and delicate operation.

Perhaps the lady can sell her bargain as damaged goods.

Perhaps it is a little late to discuss the status of the Lusitania. at the time it was sunk by submarines. American opinion concerning that episode is firmly fixed. Americans make no denial that the act displeased them, and is not, in their recollection, coupled with the memory of any mitigating circumstance. WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM-In a day or two I'll get over it. I know that perfectly well. None of us worry very long over another fellow's troubles. By tomorrow morning I will be fairly well restored to my usual state of complacency. By the end of the week the matter will almost have passed out of my mind. In three weeks the little tragedy will have become a good story. I'll tell it with a tremolo. But if I were what I should be I'd be ringing doorbells and throwing bricks until a contemptible wrong had been undone.

In actual practice I will be blaming the injury done Frank Farrell on the system. "It's all wrong." I will tell people. "A rotten system." Frank Farrell is a poor man, rather stupid, without any friends or relatives who are not both poor and stupid. He has been in trouble, as the police say, before. The prosecutor roared at him.

"Tell the jury," he demanded. "Look the jurymen in the eyes. Tell them whether you have ever been arrested before? Farrell had been arrested several times. Once he was drunk. was sober and a drunken policeman arrested him. Once Once he was sober and a drunken policeman arrested that he hit an installment collector in the eye. It was later proven that he hit an installment collector in the eye. It was later proven that he did not owe a penny on his sticks of furniture, but that made no he did not owe a penny on his sticks of furniture, but that made no difference. He had hit a collector in the eye, and he did ten days in jail. A bad character, the prosecutor said. Yet Farrell has always been honest, so far as any one knows, and fairly industrious

It is true that he is poor and stupic. Therefore he was railroaded to the penitentiary for a crime that even the lawyers say he did not commit. The prosecuting at-torney wanted "to make a showing" so that he could be sure of reelection. He played the dirty tricks of his trade, and befuddled the jury and poor Frank Farrell and the witnesses. His friends at hte bar congratulated him.

"You handled that case mighty well," said they. "Farrell didn't have a chance. Tomorrow you or I may be in Farrell's plight and not have a chance. Just so long as attorneys are willing to send innocent men to the penitentiary "to make a showing," it does not seem to me that we can afford to throw many bricks at the Turks, who are candid about their judicial misdemeanors.

ANTI-FLIRT CRUSADERS TO MAKE NEW YORK SAFER FOR WOMEN

Men and women prominent in New York city have organized to stamp cut the "Mashers' Disease," which, police court records show, has been spreading rapidly in the metropolis. The crusaders will wear ing of the corner stone the last day the button of the organization and have pledged themselves to arrest or cause the arrest of anyone found of the year if it can be brought flirting or "mashing." This photograph, made at a recent meeting of the self-appointed guardians of women and girls, shows (left to right, front row), Mrs. Nettie Cattone, James Madison, chairman, and Mrs. George Carrol. (Back row), Miss Cora Madison, Richard B. Lindley and George Carrol

FIRST MEETING

An appreciative audience gathered at the Broadway school last evening in response to invitations tendered by the Broadway Parent-Teacher association. The event was their first attempt in a move to promote interest among the fathers in the work of the schools and teachers. It is a get together and get acquainted movement.

A well selected and highly appreciated program was arranged, consisting of vocal selections by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard, Edward Ratigan and Harry Larmer: tromoone solo by G. H. Killinger, dance solos by Mahala Wiekert and Ann Elizabeth Wilkinson, and a reading by A. J. VanWie.

After the entertainment the guests gathered in the sloyd room where lunch was served and acquaintnaceships made. Each guest was tagged with their name on a card, thus eliminating the formal introductions.

ecomes Executive Secre tary of Presbyterian Church

George D. McDill, who resides on East Wilson, and who is one of the elders in the Glendale Presbyterian church, has taken up the interesting but enormous work of executive secretary of the church surrendered by H. L. Finley, who is entering into the real estate busness with R. N. Stryker.

With the new church rearing its walls skyward and the activities of Presbyterians multiplying, he expects to be very busy with many little details. Many of them will be taken up with the architect and builder as for example his suggestion that the pulpit rostrum be made large enough not to cramp the activities of Dr. Edmonds who pelieves all over and preaches all

Plans are simmering for the layabout. It is but eleven years since the corner stone of the present church on Ced arand Broadway was laid. At that time it seemed quite as ample for the congregation as will be the new edifice for the present one. When the question was asked, "What will you do if the church outgrows this building in eleven years?" the answer by Dr. Edmonds and Mr. McDill Mrs. Vincent Salmacia of North that this is to be the hive from which other Presbyterian churches will swarm as need for them arises.

Mr. McDill was formerly International secretary and western representative of the Y. M. C. A., and is a man of wide experience and much executive ability.

Suppose it were vouchsafed to waits," according to the old max-im, and for once this came true in your future differently, or persist in that course which seemed to appeal to you as most desirable? In "The Man Who Saw Tomor row," his new Paramount picture at the T. D. and L. theatre, today, Thomas Meighan meets an expert psychologist who enables him to look into the future. By this means he is shown what will happen to him in case he marries either of two girls-Rita, the daughter of a South Sea trader, or Helen, an arisocratic lady of England. He lives the two lives, separate ly, and we are shown what is to appen in either case. And at the end he makes his choice-bu which way he chooses must be dis covered by the fans when they se the picture which has a surprise finish.

His travels in the dual lives lead him to England, India, New York the South Seas and elsewhere. He becomes Viceroy of India, and nar rowly escapes an assassin's bullet A third love enters his life—a Russian girl, but fate parts them.

Chamber of Commerce Auditorium Packed to the low at the corner of Vine and Paci-fic, with the front room finished for Doors by Folks

The program put on by the Emerson School of Expression at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening not only drew a full house but proved such an attraction that about 75 patrons had to be turned away. An equal number of children surrendered their chairs and sat on the floor and standing room for adults was at a premium.

It served as an introduction to two new members of the staff, Miss Ella James, who will have charge of the violin department and who has a large collection of medals won in music contests in all parts of the world, and Madame Katrina Gumensky, a Russian dancer, formerly connected with the Imperial Ballet in Moscow, who will lead that department in the school. Her performance had the greater interest for those who knew that a few days ago she suffered an accident in which one of her toes was almost cut off, and during the entertainment her hand was so cut professional art. almost cut off, and during the enby a tambourine that the blood spattered her costume and the floor, the red in the dress and the shower of red petals disguising the fact from the knowledge of the Christmas plans are made first for the children and younger members of the family-which is as it should be. The baby must have a doll or a ball as a starter for a long list of things, each member of the younger set has a well-known preference for some certain articles, and mother will be remembered too, but what will we get for Dad?

Of course, there's always neckties and handkerchiefs, and Dad can always use socks, and—and—"Give him some-thing for his car," is the slogan this year at Western Auto Supply Company stores. Every Dad is interested in his car, in most cases he is proud of it. He'd rather talk about the old boat than most anything else and he'd like to doll it up if he could just afford to do it, Sometimes the problem of keeping a car going for business and the family outings is quite a major item in the monthly expense sheet, and Dad don't quite see how he can get the extras he would like to out on. He knows a motometer, wind wings, bumpers and many other things snap up the car's appearance a lot, besides car's appearance a lot, besides being very, useful as comfort and safety providers for all members of the family. He knows better than other members of the family something he would like for the car in the way of tools and extra tires, some handy contrivances for keeping everything clean and bright, and all minor repairs made up to the minute.

"Our suggestion," said Mr. Roudebuch, local manager at Western Auto, "to the mem-bers of any family is to listen to Dad as he talks about his to Dad as he talks about his car and you will get an idea of what he wants. Then come in and talk it over with us. We can show you the things he wants as well as many others he probably will forget to mention, and help you give Dad the surprise of his life this Christmas. NEW YORK, Dec. 5.-Proposals for the organization of an eastern football conference are being made again at the close of the most successful seasons in the history of the gridiron. While much of its old prestige has been dimmed by the rise of other smaller institutions to place of prominence in football, the "Big Three" still has enough power and influence to be looked upon as a leader in the east.

Without Yale, Harvard and Princeton, a conference could function in the east, but it could not occupy the place that the Western Conference does in the middle west. Bob Fisher, the Harvard coach, speaking unofficially, has expressed a favorable opinion on the conference idea. Bill Roper, the Princeton football mentor, says it is not neces-Yale, without taking an attitude against the conference, says that Yale would be reluctant to join such an organization. However, at New Haven, it is intimated that the new football agreement entered into by Yale, Haryard and Princeton may be the foundation of a conference of some kind in the future. The big difficulty in organizing an eastern conference would be in defining what constituted the eastern section. While there are ten members of the Western Conference, the territory represented is much smaller than the area now generally regarded as the east. Pennsylvania, geographically, is not exactly east, but it is considered such from a football standpoint. Georgetown is ranked both in eastern and southern circles and West Virginia is even regarded as an eastern team.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Colgate, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Washington and Jefferson, Lafayette, Lehigh, Rutgers, New York University, Syracuse, Army, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Boston College, Fordham, Holy Cross, Brown, Swarthmore and several other universities would be eligible

Try to pick ten out of that bunch and you'd have a nice little war on your hands over the ones omitted.

There has also been some talk of a football "Landis" for the east, but the coaches in general scoff at the idea as being unnecessary. They point out that football is not a professional sport, that it is not threatened by commercialism and that faculty hands are the best for its administration.

Nothing seems to have been wrong with football this season As long as there is rivalry between colleges there will be talk that So-and-So is having his expenses paid at Such-and-Such and as long as there are old grads there will be some players getting a helping hand, but it is not dangerous enough to be a cause for alarm.

Big universities like Harvard, Yale and Princeton, where the proceeds of football foot the bills for all athletics, hardly will encourage the idea of a conference. They are big enough to select their own opponents and they are big enough to demand only good drawing cards.

With a conference idea prevailing, any of the big elevens would have to book two or three games a year with opponents that wouldn't draw a handful of spectators.

KAIGHIN'S CANDY SHOP S A BUSY PLACE

C. A. Kaighin, the wholesale candy manufacturer at 123 South Maryland, says never has he been so busy as now, the demands of the Christmas trade for the finer grades in handpainted baskets and boxes exceeding that of any previous year, and the demand in general is away beyond his expecta-tions. He has doubled his staff and now has 19 employes inside and out, representing a payroll of $700 a week. He could use more if he had floor space for them and is considering an appeal to his landlord to build another story to accommodate his growing business.

While he makes every kind of candy from the brightly col-ored hard sweet of the Christmas stocking to the luscious chocolate cream, he makes no attempt to compete with the cheap candy on the market, It is his proud boast that his candles are pure and free from adulteration of any kind; that they are compounded of the best materials to be had in the market, and he is content to build up his business on that

BARD SECTION HAS AFTERNOON SESSION AT LYON HOME

About 25 members of the Shake peare section of the Tuesday Af-ternoon club enjoyed a session of unusual interest at the home Mrs. J. E. Lyon at 619 North Maryland. The second act of "Romeo and Juliet," was the theme of the afternoon and a special treat was afforded by two scenes enacted by members. The first was the bal-cony scene in which Mrs. Henry Ralston personated Romeo and Mrs. W. E. Evans, Juliet. They did it so well it was a disappoint-ment to have it come to an end, but more pleasure of the same kind was provided when Mrs. Colin Cable as Juliet and Mrs. Montgomery as the nurse gave Juliet's soliloguy and the scene between her and the nurse in the second act. Enthusiasm for the work could hardly go further than the the instructor, Mrs. Garrett was very much pleased with the work, which, as she pointed out, would be its own reward in making the beautiful text a part of the men-tal furnishings of those who took the parts. songs, "There Was a Lover and His Lass," "Who Is Sylvia," text of which was read by Mrs. Ralston; "Hark, Hark, the Lark," the last named being one of Alma Gluck's records.

knitted garments and bonnets: manicure sets, sewing baskets and so on; also some of the most wonderful designs in finest quality of stamped goods which the ladies just can't resist. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are fast making new friends and customers and they love to show goods. Mr. Williams has made many a clock and watch "go" that had been given up as doomed to eternal silence. Southern California motorists now have the opportunity to use Associated Gasoline—a companion product to Cycol Motor Oil. These products are made, and sold throughout the Pacific Coast States, by The Associated Oil Company—one of the foremost producers and refiners of oil products for nearly a quarter of a century. Because of the wide range of our oil field properties we are able to select, for making Associated Gasoline, the crude oils most perfectly adapted for yielding the highest grade of gasoline.

New and different refining processes also give Associated Gasoline greater value in delivering mileage—in preventing dilution of lubricating oil and in giving a quick, snappy start. Thus Associated Gasoline saves your money, your engine and your battery—three important savings that will keep down your cost of motoring.

Associated Gasoline gives your engine added power—more "pep"—new eagerness to go. Every drop is consumed in the combustion chambers, leaving no damaging residue.

Leading garages and service stations sell Associated Gasoline. Look for the Associated sign shown here—it is the mark of a different type of service for Southern California.

CENTRAL CHRISTIAN WOMEN TAKE TURNS AT BAZAAR

Women of the Central Christian church on Tuesday took their turn at a bazaar which was open to visitors during the afternoon and evening supplemented by a chicken dinner served at night for the wonderful price of only 50c, followed by a miscellaneous entertainment. It was well patronized, particularly in the evening. The booths ranged from a rummage sales table in charge of Mrs. Melville G. Musser to a candy stand over which Miss Fern Peters presided. Mrs. Harry Greenwalt had a miscellany booth where toilet goods calculated to appeal to fair ladies was on sale; Mrs. J. H. Orth was in charge of the fancy work; Mrs. Jenkins. assisted by Mesdames Peters, Elliott and G. D. Mercer, sold quilts and rugs; the booth for which the girls of the Live Cole class were responsible had a wonderful collection of aprons on the line in charge of Mrs. Harry Marple; Mrs. Fred E. Hagen presided over the cooked food booth; Mrs. John Ray over the parcel post counter. Green and Mrs. J. H. Daugherty, president of the Women's society, had general charge of the bazaar.
